

fact. After the jurors had looked over the roof by which some of the girls had escaped they went at the investigation with a great deal of earnestness...

On the ninth floor one of them found the heel of a shoe, a hooded waist, a skirt and several frames of handbags. These were all turned over to the coroner.

The fire escape in the rear of the building was examined. Then the iron shutters on the windows opening on the fire escape were opened, and it was pointed out that when the shutters were opened they blocked the passage down.

The jury then went to the fire escape where many of the bodies fell. They counted and examined the standpipes on the landings and tested them. They found no difficulty in turning on the water.

The sixth floor, an empty loft, was next examined. The day of the fire many of the girls were in the loft. The fire escape found that it was becoming smoky, they said later, and left it at the sixth floor. When they tried to get out, they say, they found the door locked and had to smash it in to get out.

On the second floor is another shirt-waist company, which the jury inspected and saw that the shutters on the fire escape were the same as in the Triangle company shop before the fire.

They had almost concluded their investigation when the chief clerk of the coroner and the chief clerk of the Italian Consul office are making. Some of the girls have already made affidavits for the coroner.

It was the habit to hold back one week's pay from the girls. A part of the company told them they wouldn't get their pay unless they signed affidavits. For the Italian Consul they have made affidavits, refracting the coroner's affidavits and the affidavits they swore, they say, that the doors were open at all times and the loss of life was due to panic only.

One of the witnesses, Fortunato, a forewoman on the ninth floor, she says that when the fire started she ran to the Washington side of the building and tried the doors. She found them locked and ran back to the window. Then she thought of the Greene street door and she said she tried to open it but to jump when the thought of the Greene street exit struck her.

Francisco Ricca of 317 East Thirtieth street, who was standing in the street, saw the fire start on the Washington side and ran down to the sixth floor, where she broke in and got out through the locked door. Carmela, who lives at 107 West 107th street, swore that there were two elevators and one stairway on the Greene street side for the use of operators and freight.

The stairways were not used at all, she said, and the machine on the Greene street side was locked. Anita Messana of 102 First street, said she ran to the Washington side and found the door locked. Francesca Casata of 232 Elizabeth street said the door on the ninth floor was locked.

"Seeing little hope of the door being opened," her mother said, "I went by means of salvation by that route after a while I ran to the door on the Greene street side and threw myself through a window. I found the door locked. I found the elevator on the platform. It was on the level with the floor. Nobody was operating it, so I pushed in and pulled the rope and went down."

There are many affidavits to the same effect about the doors on the Washington side. When the coroner's jury was ordered out of the Grand Jury corridor on Monday by the Assistant District Attorney, they were ordered to leave the building and the coroner's jury was conducting its investigation.

DR. HYDE GETS A NEW TRIAL

MISSOURI SUPREME COURT RE-OPENS SWOPE CASE.

Principal Error Found in Proceedings of Lower Court Was Judge Latah's Action in Recalling Defendant's Bond During Trial—Hyde to Give Bail.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 11.—The Supreme Court this morning reversed and remanded the case of Dr. B. C. S. Hyde, convicted a year ago of the murder of Col. Thomas H. Swope. He has been in the county jail ever since his conviction, but will be released immediately on bond.

One of the principal grounds for the Supreme Court decision was Judge Latah's action in recalling Dr. Hyde's bond during the trial and ordering him locked up. While great precautions were taken to keep this fact from the jury, the Supreme Court decided that the news had leaked to the jury and prejudiced them in Hyde's case.

An application for a new trial was based on the following allegations: That the indictments were illegal and the evidence insufficient to support the allegations; that competent testimony was barred and incompetent testimony received; that prejudicial remarks were allowed by the prosecutor and by the court; that the court should not have recalled Hyde's bail during the trial; and that the verdict was the result of passion and prejudice.

The chief evidence attacked was that of the Chicago and Michigan toxicologists who examined the viscera of the dead Col. Swope. An special attack was made on Prof. Vaughn of Michigan, who testified that he found strychnine in the liver of the dead man.

Dr. Hyde was found guilty of murder on May 1910. His inability to explain properly the purchase of capsules of potassium cyanide was chiefly responsible for his conviction. The prosecution said it was to kill members of the Swope family and asked "Does a man kill cockroaches with poison capsules?"

Jack H. Hinton was the first on the list of strange deaths in the Swope family. Hinton died on Oct. 1, 1909, and was buried in the cemetery. Hyde was accused of having killed Hinton. On the third day of the same month Col. Swope was unexpectedly taken ill and died in convulsions.

SCHULTZ'S DAUGHTERS SUE.

To Enjoin Their Brothers' Control Over the Mineral Water Business.

Supreme Court Justice Gerard granted yesterday the motion by the six daughters of the late Carl H. Schultz, the mineral water manufacturer, for an injunction to restrain their two brothers, Carl Rudolph Schultz and Carl Walter Schultz, from running out the business of the late Carl H. Schultz.

The court found that of the 2,000 shares held by the Schultz brothers and August Zinsner, Jr., as trustees, and 350 other shares are held by Zinsner and each of the brothers as trustees, making the total trust stock 1,919 shares. The court found that Zinsner and the two brothers cannot agree as to how the trust stock is to be voted and since trust stock can only be voted with the concurrence of all the trustees of the 1,919 shares must be enjoined. The court said it would be also enjoined to permit the two brothers to vote their shares.

Until 1903 the stock of the corporation was all held by Louise Schultz, mother of the parties to the suit, who is now Mrs. Sievers. She then put the bulk of the stock in trust for her children and for the sons of the daughter. The daughter being running the business to suit themselves. They sued their brothers in 1907, but the court refused to grant an injunction to the brothers to have the sisters represented by two directors, Walter C. W. Auferman and Ernest R. Rubenstein, husbands of two of the daughters.

Upon their motion for an injunction the sisters complained that Auferman and Rubenstein, and Albert P. H. Hinton, vice-president of the corporation, were to be elected to all two of the vacancies. The sisters say is under the control of Carl R. Schultz and his personal counsel, H. H. Hinton, who is to be elected to all two of the vacancies.

The sisters charge their brothers with wasting the property of the corporation and with the sale of the property. They demand that December when there was a bank balance of only $250 and no surplus. The sisters are Ora and Emma Hinton, the daughters of Carl H. Hinton. Hinton was the first on the list of strange deaths in the Swope family.

Commission Rule Bill. New Jersey House Passes It But Balks at Recall. Trenton, N. J., April 11.—After various amendments had been offered and adopted Assemblyman Walsh's bill providing for a commission on government is a bill which passed in the House today. In its final form the bill still provided for the initiative and referendum but the provision for recall was nullified by a provision for a reform bill to be introduced until the expiration of his term.

Survived Bullet in Spine. Mt. Vernon Policeman Saved by Delicate Operation. White Plains, April 11.—Policeman Pasquale C. Buffalo of the Mount Vernon force, who was shot through the spine more than three months ago, was able to leave the hospital to-day and is now at his home on North Sixth avenue. He is not able to walk and had to be carried to his home on a mattress. He suffers from pain and appears to be in good health.

Grand Jury Sits Good Friday. It's So Busy With Cash Fire and Police. The Grand Jury will take up again to-day its inquiry into police conditions. Several witnesses, both civilians and policemen, will be called. There will probably be one police captain on the list. The Grand Jury has decided, in order to handle the work and to be able to continue the fire investigation next week to sit on Good Friday.

INSURGENTS FARE NICELY

NO DISCRIMINATION IN THE COMMITTEES' MAKEUP.

Minority Leader Mann Gives Out the Republican Assignments and the House Accepts Them—Leader Takes No Pledge—Uncle Joe Gets Good Birth.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The list of committee assignments made by Minority Leader James R. Mann of Illinois, in accordance with the authority vested in him by the Republican caucus held a week ago yesterday, was made public upon the convening of the House to-day immediately thereafter. Upon motion of Representative Underwood of Alabama, the majority floor leader, the House proceeded to adopt the Mann list of Republican designations and the Democratic assignments made by the Ways and Means Democrats, sitting as a committee on committees and approved by the Democratic caucus held two days prior to the convening of the special session.

Mr. Mann has gone out of his way to be fair to the insurgents. For instance he gave to Representative Madison of Kansas and a parrot of Wisconsin, two men who fought the Cannon organization all through the last Congress, two of the four minority places on the important Committee on Rules, balancing them with two genuine regulars, Representatives Dalzell of Pennsylvania and Wilson of Illinois. In addition he assigned Judge Madison to a place on the Committee on Labor and Mr. Lenroot to the Committee on Patents.

Representative Cooper of Wisconsin, whom sixteen of the insurgents voted to make minority leader, is assigned to the Committee on Finance and Foreign Relations committee. The Democrats will get one additional member, and on all other committees they will receive two additional members. The membership of all the Senate committees will be increased to bring about the result.

ANTI-RECIPROcity MONEY. Plenty of It in Canada—Hot Fight All Over the Country Over Easter. Ottawa, April 11.—The Parliamentary Easter recess begins to-morrow night. The opponents of reciprocity are scurrying away in numbers to distant parts of the country to address meetings and there is only a handful of members left behind to carry on the debate. It is evident that an enormous fund is available for the anti-reciprocity campaign. To-night the Ottawa Free Press gives prominence to a story that this fund is being contributed largely by the Tariff Reform League of Great Britain, which, it is asserted, is furnishing funds to the Anti-Reciprocity League. The Free Press says:

It is openly boasted by the opponents of reciprocity that they have the largest campaign fund ever gotten together in Canada and that no expense will be spared to create such a public opinion against reciprocity that the conservatives are bound to win when the appeal to the people comes.

Members of Parliament and other public men are being inundated with documents from the British Tariff Commission, which is the result of the tariff commission. The debate in the Commons to-day was carried on by Mr. MacLean of Huron and Col. Sam Hughes, MacLean is a Government supporter, and Hughes is a reciprocity negotiator at Washington he said.

Our representatives not only held the reins but got the best of the bargain all along the line. If the United States would agree to throw down her tariff wall utterly (Canada ought to do likewise) our manufacturers would not only get a fair field and no favor. They have the capital and brains and now they are on the eve of getting the cheapest power in the world. It is not yet nursing their wounds.

Alexander, who made the chief speech of welcome at a reception given to the Rev. John Henry Jowett and Mrs. Jowett last night in the chapel of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, besought the members of the congregation to do their best to help him in his work.

Dr. Jowett, after expressing appreciation for the kindness and consideration which had been shown to him and Mrs. Jowett since their arrival in New York, said that there were so many distractions in a city like this that a man must watch himself very carefully in order not to neglect his work.

"My mind probably works more slowly and laboriously than that of any other person in this room," he continued. "I do not come to me in lightning flashes. They creep in slowly like the dawn. I must confess that it is my custom to begin my preparation for my Sunday sermons on Monday. Many ministers, I know, wait until Friday. I cannot wait that way. Therefore I beg you to let me have my morning to myself in order that I may give you my best service. I have been beset ever since my arrival with invitations from all sorts of churches and societies to undertake anything that will in any way interfere with it.

J., April 11.—Working hard to get a silk gown cleaned before night to fill an order which his employer, Madame Marie Launay of 24 Prospect place, had taken during the day, George Daggett rubbed it this afternoon till an electric spark sprang from the silk. Unfortunately the benzine can stood close to him and close by was the shed in which all industries of the drying and cleaning establishment are kept.

The whole place was ablaze in an instant and Daggett had to run for his own safety. As it was his face and hands were badly singed. The gown he was working on was not the only one which was due for its benzine bath. Others belonging to East Orange society women were caught by the flames. What with the gown, the benzine and the sheds all destroyed, madame thinks her loss will be between $800 and $1,000.

SWIFT KAISER NEW-FITTED

MET WHAT MARC KLAU CALLS A BLIZZARD IN THE CHANNEL.

She Has Elevators and Flat Glass Weather Walls—Mr. Klau to Send "The Pink Lady" to the London Gauley and Bring "Peggy" to New Amsterdam.

The North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm II. arrived yesterday from Bremen, Southampton and Cherbourg in improved condition. She has been many weeks in the yards of the line at Bremer-putting in elevators to transport passengers between decks, a complete plate glass protection for the upper promenade deck and a renewal of decorations, all of which cost the line $100,000, or more than the price of some of the early craft of the North German Lloyd fleet.

The Kaiser had very stormy weather almost from the start to finish of a trip that was more than half a day behind her usual schedule. She found in the English Channel what Mr. Klau calls a blizzard as bad as anything he had ever seen in Nebraska. The pelting snow hit her as she started into Southampton and it was blowing between 10 and 11 by the Beaufort scale, or between 70 and 80 miles, when she made an effort to get into Cherbourg. She was due there at 9:30 but did not make it until midnight.

On Sunday afternoon the Kaiser passed two miles to the south of six large icebergs, two of which were of the cathedral type, with pinacles extending about 150 feet above the body of the bergs more than a hundred feet tall. No polar bears were seen attending arctic services. The steeples were just high humps of ice longer than the ship. Capt. Cuppers said he believed that the six bergs were originally in one colossal berg. Nearly all the ship's company came out on deck and took a look at the magnificent sight. Mr. Klau has been three weeks on the other side looking after the interests of "The Pink Lady," playing at the New Amsterdam. He said he has finished negotiations by which she will be transported to George Edwards's Gauley Theatre in London. The entire company will go to the Gauley and the company playing "Peggy" will come to the New Amsterdam at Easter.

Mr. Klau said he was glad to hear that the ticket speculators had been proceeded against by the city authorities. It was up to them to suppress the ticket speculators, as the theatres could not, particularly after it had been decided that the theatre's special officers could not wear badges as special policemen. If all the managers, Mr. Klau said, could sell tickets at box office prices they could make money. Mr. Klau said he had finished Haddon Chambers's "Passers By" playing in London, as the best creation of the playwright since his "Tyranny of Time" and "The Sign of the Cross" in London.

Other passengers by the Kaiser were Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Francis, Mr. and Mrs. Seth Low, Pierpont, Miss and Mrs. H. H. Hinton, Mrs. H. H. Hinton, the Royal Museum, who is here to study Spanish painting and etching, of which, he says, American collectors and museums have the finest examples.
